BOND COMPANY

STUDIES EL PASO

Sends Representative Here to Make Survey; Publicity Gets Results.

Mr. Newton of New Haven, Conn., who represents Spitzer, Rorick & Co., bond buyers of 100,000, New York, is in the city making a study of financial, industrial and other conditions with a view toward determining why El Paso enjoys a seemingly unparalleled prosperity while other cities seem to be complaining of hard times.

He spent nearly two hours in the publicity department of the chamber of commerce Tuesday making inquiries and collecting data.

"It is the custom of our house," said Mr. Newton, "to send its representatives into the various sections of the country for the purpose of making studies such as I am making in El Paso."

He handled El Paso bonds, therefore, and last fall received one of your El Paso booklets which I have been out in showing to the people of New England, New York and other eastern cities when indicating them to invest their savings in El Paso city or county bonds.

Results of Publicity. "El Paso has figured so largely in the newspapers during the past three or four years as the center of activity on the part of Mexican revolutionary forces that sometimes find investors who are afraid to buy El Paso bonds."

He subscribed for the El Paso paper, however, and city generously the notices published in those papers from time to time of El Paso's building activities, its increase in postal receipts, its increase in banking and insurance, and its exports and these clippings, together with your big pictorial booklet, usually have the desired effect. It may be of interest to the publicity department of the chamber of commerce to know that the most convincing picture in your booklet are those displaying the Mills building and the Paso del Norte hotel. People look at those pictures and make up their minds that while the town may be filled with revolutionary justas the citizens are not afraid to invest their money in buildings of a permanent character."
